Diocesan Agencies Responding to the 1986 Annual Survey..... 34

INTRODUCTION

In 1986 Catholic Charities agencies provided services to over 8.5 million individuals including over 2.5 million families. Over 170,000 individuals contributed services as paid staff, volunteers and board members. Income and in-kind contributions totaled over $600,000,000.

The findings contained in this report document the breadth and depth of activities and services offered by the Catholic Charities agencies throughout the United States. These services include preventative services such as education and support as well as direct mental health services such as counseling and direct emergency services such as housing and food.

Besides direct services Catholic Charities agencies fulfill the role as an advocate for justice in society. This is indicated by the extensiveness of its legislative and community development activities.

The report indicates that the recipients of Catholic Charities services are of all ages, colors and nationalities. However, it is also clear that in carrying out their mission Catholic Charities agencies have in principle and action placed a priority on the preferential option for the poor.

Overall the work of Catholic Charities can be viewed as a "seamless garment." In living up to the Code of Ethics its work "supports the sanctity and dignity of human life from the moment of its initiation until death, the value and integrity of the human person, the sacredness of the union of man and woman in marriage, the value of people's social relationships to one another and to community, and the central role of the family in human life and in society."

The data contained in this report are taken from the responses of 131 agency directors. This represents a response rate of 83.9% of all active diocesan agencies. Eleven more diocesan agencies responded to the 1986 Survey as compared with 1985. In many cases the increase in numbers reported in 1986 reflect this increase in response rate.

I. PERSONNEL

In 1986, 174,749 individuals contributed services through the 131 reporting Catholic Charities agencies. This includes paid staff, volunteers and board members. The vast majority of these are volunteers (79%), followed by paid staff (15%) and board members (6%). A total of 23,926 more service providers were reported in 1986 as compared with 1985 (an increase of almost 16%). However, the percentage distribution by volunteer, paid staff and board members for the two years is identical.

Of the 26,911 paid staff, 60% are professional or paraprofessional service deliverers, 12% are managerial, 19% are clerical and support staff and 9% are reported as other. Overall the percentage of paid staff who are members of a minority group is 27%. This represents an increase of 6% over 1985. With the exception of Diocesan/Executive Director every category of employees shows an increase in percent minority over 1985. The largest increases are among clerical workers (+7.1%) and professional service staff (+5.9%).

Table I.2 contains the percentage of minorities in each of 3 categories (managerial, professional and clerical) for 1976 and 1986. In all three categories there has been an increase of 3% over the ten year period. Although the number of individuals in these categories increased by 28% in the ten years the percentage of minorities has only increased by 3%.

In 1986 a total of 138,249 individuals are reported as volunteers. Of these 59% are reported as having specialized training for their work and 78% are reported as having direct contact with clients. Approximately 30% of the volunteers are agency based and 70% are parish based. The number of volunteers reported is an increase of approximately 20,000 over 1985. The increase is almost all in the category of parish level volunteers. Over one-fifth (21%) of the volunteers are members of a minority group. This represents an increase of 4% over 1985.

The responding agencies report a total number of 9,589 board members. Of these, approximately 11% are members of an ethnic or racial minority group. These figures are almost identical to those reported in 1976. In 1976 the agencies reported a total of 9,316 board members with 11% being minorities.

II. FINANCES

Total income and in-kind contributions to Catholic Charities agencies was $634,859,539 in 1986. The largest income category is government fees and grants comprising 44.7% of all cash income. This is followed by program service fees (17.2%) and United Way (10.1%). The Catholic Charities appeal, Diocesan grants and other contributions comprise 12.9% of the total cash income. In-kind contributions comprise 4.8% of total income.

Table II.2 contains a comparison of cash income sources for 1976 and 1986. Overall the agencies have generated $285,790,886 more in 1986 compared with 1976. This represents an increase of almost 90%. The percentage of total cash income is almost identical for the two time periods.

Of the total expenditures for 1986, 60% was allocated to salaries, 6% to emergency financial assistance, 14% to overhead and 20% to other or unspecified.

III. SOCIAL SERVICES

In 1986 Catholic Charities agencies provided services to over 8 million individuals and over 2 million families. The type of social services fall into the following general categories:

- o Counseling Services
- o Pregnancy Services
- o Adoption Services
- o Refugee Resettlement/Immigration Services
- o Education Services
- o Socialization Services
- o Food Services
- o Emergency/Crisis Services
- o Support Services
- o Housing Services
- o Out of Home Care Services

Table III.1 contains the data on the number of children, adults, aging persons and families who were recipients of services. Almost 3 million children, over 4 million adults and over 1 million aging persons were served by Catholic Charities agencies. A total of 2,664,213 families were served. The largest number received emergency/crisis and food services (over 5 million individuals and over 1 million families).

Counseling is the service provided by the greatest number of Catholic Charities agencies (116). The number of individuals who received counseling services was 739,711. The number of families who received counseling services was 331,871.

Support services were provided to 611,955 individuals and 238,915 families. These services range from child and adult day care to providing the necessary assistance to keep families intact or the support needed to keep a person in the community.

The fourth largest service category was education services which were provided to 599,200 individuals and 159,677 families. These services are predominantly preventive services of family life education and parenting education, as well as education for values clarification and for social justice.

Socialization services, which reflect work done in senior centers, neighborhood centers, and other group settings, are provided mainly to youth and the elderly. A total of 529,929 individuals and 159,677 families were recipients of these services.

Refugee resettlement and immigration services were provided to 242,166 individuals and 90,863 families.

Care outside of the home may be sometimes necessaray for either a brief period or a long duration. A total of 119,547 families were served through the provision of round-the-clock care to 182,535 persons, the majority of whom (81%) were children.

Over 100,000 individuals and over 50,000 families received pregnancy and adoption services. These include such services as medical care, material assistance, housing, adoption placement and services to adult adoptees.

SPECIFIC SERVICES PROVIDED

In this section we will focus on the variety of specific services offered by Catholic Charities agencies throughout the United States. In reporting the data we will consider the number of agencies offering these specific services, whether or not the agencies offer the service through a specific program and whether or not the services are offered in a parish setting.

A. Counseling Services

Every agency reports offering counseling services. Over 90% of the agencies report offering individual, family, marital and pregnancy counseling and over 75% report offering pre-marital, adolescent and group counseling. Over half of the agencies report offering counseling services in the areas of family violence, alcohol and drug use, employment, grief and loss, family mediation and post-abortion. The question of post-abortion counseling services was asked for the first time in 1986. It is significant that of the 87 agencies reporting provision of these services, 33 state that they have a specific post-abortion counseling program.

Over half of the agencies report having specific programs for individual counseling, family counseling, marital counseling, adolescent counseling and pregnancy counseling. In addition approximately one-third or more have specific programs for pre-marital, group, and employment counseling, as well as counseling programs for family violence and for chemical dependency.

The counseling services which are offered in a parish setting by the largest number of agencies are individual, family, marital, pre-marital, adolescent, group and grief/loss. Over 20% of the agencies report that these services are offered in a parish setting.

Counseling to AIDS victims was included in the survey for the first time in 1986. Over one-third of the agencies report that they offer counseling services to AIDS victims, 8% of the agencies report that they have specific programs for AIDS victims and 4% of the agencies report that they offer counseling services for AIDS victims in a parish setting.

B. Pregnancy Services

In addition to pregnancy counseling services, over 90% of the agencies report providing additional pregnancy services. These agencies report serving 73,061 individuals and 32,814 families. The additional services include material assistance to pregnant women (86%), housing for pregnant persons (63%), pre and post natal care (61%) and continuing education for pregnant and parenting clients (60%). Only one-third of the agencies offer pregnancy testing (36%).

With the exception of pregnancy counseling (62%) and material assistance for pregnant persons (57%) less than half of the agencies report that they have specific programs for offering services to pregnant persons.

While 17% provide pregnancy counseling in a parish setting, few (less than 5%) report that their agencies provide additional services to pregnant persons in a parish setting.

C. Adoption Services

Over 80% of the agencies report that they offer adoption services. The largest number of agencies offer infant adoption services (88%), pre-adoption foster care placement (80%) and post-adoption services (84%). Over half of the agencies report that they offer services to special needs/waiting children (65%) and to adult adoptees (70%). Only 44% of the agencies provide services related to international adoptions.

The majority of agencies report that adoption services are provided in the context of a specific program. Almost two-thirds of the agencies report having a specific program for infant adoptions (63%) and half of the agencies report having specific programs for pre-adoption foster care placement (50%) and post-adoption services (47%). Approximately one-fourth to one-third of the agencies report that they have specific programs for international adoptions (25%), adult adoptees (35%) and special needs/waiting children (39%).

Less than 5% of the agencies report that adoption services are offered in a parish setting.

A total of 44,022 individuals and 18,380 families were the receipients of adoption services during 1986. The agencies also report a total of 3,981 completed adoptions with 69% of these being special needs/waiting children and 704 being international adoptions.

D. Refugee Resettlement/Immigration Services

Almost 85% of all agencies report offering refugee resettlement and immigration services. A total of 242,166 individuals and 90,863 families were the recipients of these services during 1986.

Over half of the agencies report offering the following services: family reunification (80%), pre-reception preparation (68%), employment services (60%), and housing placement (60%). Between one-third and one-half of the agencies report offering the following: services to unaccompanied minors (51%), language education (46%), legal services (43%), health services (37%), and general education services (36%).

Between one-third and one-half of the agencies report having specific programs for family reunification (50%), pre-reception preparation (47%), employment services (44%), and housing placement services (37%).

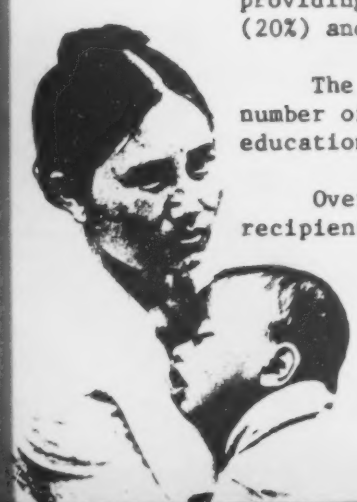
Fourteen agencies or 11% report that housing placement services are offered in a parish setting. Less than 10% of the agencies report offering other refugee resettlement or immigration services in a parish setting.

Of the total number of individuals served 39% are Asians, 28% are Mexican, 16% are from South American Countries, 10% are European, 6% are from the Carribean and 2% are African.

E. Education Services

The education services provided by Catholic Charities agencies are services which can best be viewed as preventative services. Approximately 80% of the agencies report that they provide education services. These include primarily services to promote family life such as family life education (57%), parenting education (57%), marriage preparation (47%) and natural family planning education (31%). Education for social justice (48%), values clarification education (26%), adult education (23%), special education (17%) and head start are also provided (9%).

Over one-third of the agencies report that they have specific programs for providing family life education (34%) and parenting education (34%). Over one-fifth of the agencies report that they have specific programs for providing marriage preparation (25%), natural family planning education (20%) and education for social justice (24%).



The education services provided in a parish setting by the largest number of agencies are education for social justice (28%), family life education (21%), parenting education (16%) and marriage preparation (15%).

Overall, a total of 599,200 individuals and 159,677 families were the recipients of education services.

F. Socialization Services

The socialization services offered by Catholic Charities agencies are primarily supportive services. Less than half of the agencies report that they provide socialization services (49%). The services most frequently reported are Golden Age programs (30%), summer camp for youth (28%) and neighborhood centers (21%). These same three services are the services most often provided within the context of a specific program.

The socialization services provided by the largest percentage of agencies in a parish context are Golden Age/senior centers (13%), sports (12%) and CYO (10%).

Over one-fifth of the agencies report that they have specific programs for delivering child day care services (24%), homemaker services (20%), transportation services (24%), job development services (24%) and phone reassurance services (26%).

With the exception of phone reassurance services (15%) less than 10% of the agencies report that support services are provided by the agencies in a parish setting.

A total of 529,927 individuals and 237,037 families were the recipients of socialization services during 1986.

G. Food Services

Over half of the agencies report offering food services (58%). These services include food bank (45%), soup kitchens (25%), nutrition services (31%) and meals-on-wheels (15%). Over one-fifth of the agencies report that they have specific programs for providing the following food services: food bank (31%), nutrition services (22%) and soup kitchen (21%).

The following food services are provided by the agencies in a parish context: food bank (20%), soup kitchen (16%), nutrition services (11%) and meals-on-wheels (5%).

Over 3 million individuals and 743,394 families were the recipients of food services during 1986.

H. Emergency/Crisis Services

Over three-fourths of the agencies report that they provide emergency/crisis services (77.6%). Over two-thirds report that they provide emergency financial assistance (74%) and emergency food services (70%), and over half provide emergency clothing services (61%) and emergency housing services (51%). Between one-fifth and one-half of the agencies report that they provide shelters for homeless adults and families (41%), shelters for abused and neglected adults (24%), emergency medication (43%) and services for abused elderly (24%). Few agencies report that they provide shelter for runaway youth (18%) and services for rape victims (15%).

Approximately half of the agencies report that they provide emergency food services (47%) and emergency financial assistance (49%) within the context of a specific program.

Approximately one-fifth of the agencies report that they provide emergency food services (23%), emergency clothing services (20%) and emergency financial assistance (19%) in a parish setting.

Over 2 million individuals and 652,764 families were the recipients of emergency/crisis services during 1986.

I. Support Services

In 1986 Catholic Charities agencies provided support services to 611,995 individuals and 238,915 families. Over one-third of the agencies report that they provide transporation services (36%), job development (35%) and housing search (34%), and phone reassurance/friendly visits (38%). Over one-fifth of the agencies report that they provide child day care (28%), respite care (22%), homemaker services (24%), legal services (24%) and independent living services (28%). The following services are provided by less than 20% of the agencies: adult day care (16%), sheltered workshops (9%), hospice care (9%) and home health care (17%).

J. Housing Services

During 1986 Catholic Charities agencies provided housing services to 75,656 individuals and 38,951 families.

One-third of the agencies report that they provide housing services (34%). The specific services include housing units for the elderly (24%), housing units for the disabled (17%), housing units for families (15%) and single room occupancy housing (12%).

Over ten percent of the agencies have specific programs for providing housing units for the elderly (17%) and housing units for the disabled (12%).

Less than ten percent of the agencies report that housing services are provided by the agency in a parish setting.

K. Out of Home Care Services

In 1986 out of home care services were provided to 148,425 children, 18,343 adults, 15,767 aging persons and 119,547 families.

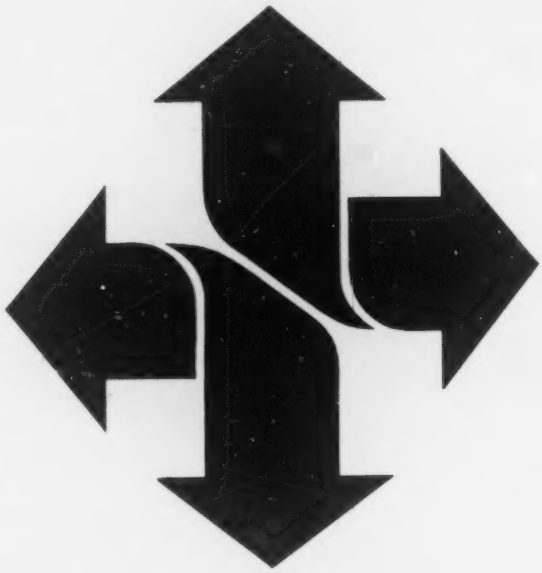
Close to a quarter (23%) of the agencies report having residential facilities for aged persons, while 15% have such faculities for adults with physical and/or mental disabilities, and 11% for adults who are dependent, neglected, abused or emotionally disturbed. Fewer agencies report having group homes for adults and aging persons. Group homes are provided by 5% of the agencies for dependent, neglected, abused or emotionally disturbed adults, by 15% for disabled adults, and by 8% for aged persons.

A variety of resources are required to meet the needs of many children and adults, and their families; these are provided on a broad continuum within the community. The out of home care services range from preventive interventions to support the child caring efforts of parents to day care and respite assistance, to residential care which provides a therapeutic milieu, to after care family supportive services.

Almost three-fourths of the agencies report that they provide foster care services for children (73%) and have a specific program for foster care (71%).

Approximately one-fourth (24%) of the agencies report that they have residential facilities for children who are dependent, neglected, abused or emotionally disturbed. Fifteen percent report that they have residential facilities for delinquent youth. Only 9% of the agencies have residential facilities for children with physical and/or mental disabilities.

Group homes are provided for children who are dependent, neglected, abused and emotionally disturbed by 17% of the agencies and group homes for children with physical and/or mental disabilities are provided by 11% of the agencies. Eight percent or fewer of the agencies provide group homes for delinquent youth.



OVERVIEW OF SOCIAL SERVICES

In the 1986 survey the respondents were asked to provide further information on the types of social services provided by their agencies. These questions and the responses are contained in Table III.13.

As can be seen from Table III.13 their is a high level of consistency in reporting. The three services which consume the greatest amount of agency energy and resources are the same three services which the agencies feel that they have been most effective in providing. These are counseling, emergency/crisis and pregnancy services. The three services which the agencies feel they have been least effective in providing are housing, health and education services.

In terms of present and future needs the respondents rank counseling, housing and emergency/crisis services as the services which are presently most needed and will be needed in the future.

Transforming the Social Order

IV. ACTIVITIES

SOCIAL ACTION: HUMANIZING AND TRANSFORMING THE SOCIAL ORDER

In 1986, the issues which received the most attention from Catholic Charities agencies in the area of legislative action were:

- The Economy
- Family Issues
- Housing/Homelessness
- Refugees/Immigration
- Hunger/Nutrition

Community organizing efforts most often centered around:

- The Economy
- Refugees/Immigration
- Housing/Homelessness
- Family Issues
- Hunger/Nutrition

Agencies convened the Christian community on a large number of topics, but priority issues in 1986 were:

- The Economy
- Housing/Homelessness
- Family Issues
- Hunger/Nutrition
- Refugees/Immigration

The issues most often addressed at the Parish level were:

- Family Issues
- Abortion
- The Economy
- Refugees/Immigration

In 1986 Catholic Charities agencies were involved in directly influencing public policy through a variety of means. Over half of the dioceses report that they participated on governmental commissions or committees on the local level (56%) and the state level (51%). One-fourth of the agencies report that they participated on governmental commissions or committees on the national level (25%). Over half of the agencies report that they offered consultation to public officials at the local level (56%) and at the state level (56%). Over one-fourth offered consultation to public officials at the national level (27%). Over one-third of the agencies report that they have participated in the development or revision of regulations at the local level (35%), half (50%) at the state level and one-fifth (19%) at the national level. Approximately two-thirds of the agencies report that their efforts at influencing public policy implementation at the local (68%) and state levels (64%) are done in collaboration with other social service agencies. One-third report collaborative efforts at the national level (37%).

Approximately 20% of all diocesan agencies were involved in community program development in 1986 and approximately 30% were involved in developing programs prior to 1986. In 1986 the largest number of activities were in the areas of housing corporations and cooperative organizations.

OVERVIEW OF SOCIAL ACTION

In the 1986 survey the respondents were asked to provide further information on the types of social issues addressed by their agencies. The issues and the responses are contained in Table IV.4.

The issues which consume the greatest amount of agency energy and resources are the same issues which the agencies have been most effective in addressing. These are:

- Family Life Issues
- Refugee/Immigration
- Hunger/Nutrition
- Economic Issues
- Housing

The issues which the agencies have been least effect in addressing are:

- Economic Issues
- Agriculture and Rural Life
- Health Care
- Housing
- Peace/Nuclear Disarmament

It appears from these data that the agencies are divided on their opinions regarding how effective they are in addressing economic issues and housing issues. The fact that these two issues appear in both the most effective and least effective rankings suggest that half of the agencies feel that they are effective in addressing these issues and half feel that they are not.

The issues which are presently the most urgent and which will be urgent in the future are the same. These are:

- Housing
- Economic Issues
- Family Life Issues
- Hunger
- Health Care

V. PARISH SOCIAL MINISTRY

In 1986, 71 diocesan agencies or 57% of all reporting agencies have a Parish Social Ministry Program. Table V.1 contains data which reflects the extent of Parish Social Ministry. Sixty-four agencies report that they sponsor Parish Social Ministry in 2,541 parishes. Another 37 agencies report that Parish Social Ministry is occurring in 998 parishes not affiliated with the agency program. Overall the respondents report that Parish Social Ministry is occurring in 3,539 parishes. This represents an increase of 322 parishes over that reported in 1985.

The majority of the responding agencies report that their Parish Social Ministry Programs provide direct services in 2,454 parishes and social action in a total of 1,524 parishes.

Another way of assessing an agency's commitment to ministry in the parish is to examine the number of staff assigned to promoting this activity. Table V.2 contains data on personnel in Parish Social Ministry Programs.

Of the 71 diocesan agencies who have Parish Social Ministry almost half report that they have a full-time director assigned to the program (48%) and over one-third report that they have a part-time director assigned to the program (37%). Thirty agencies report that they have 178 full-time staff assigned to Parish Social Ministry and 61 agencies report a total of 288 part-time staff assigned to Parish Social Ministry. Twenty-two diocesan agencies report that 334 parish level staff are involved in Parish Social Ministry. Forty-five agencies report that 1,296 parish staff are invovled in non-agency sponsored Parish Social Ministry programs.
